LINE Ads Platform Ad Campaign Guidelines

Please ensure that your advertisement strictly adheres to all applicable laws, as well as self-imposed industry rules and guidelines when posting them to the LINE Ads Platform. In addition to avoiding any possible legal risks, LINE has adopted a set of advertising guidelines for the LINE Ads Platform to protect the interests of users. While the landing page and ad creative must be submitted for review prior to release, LINE also monitors the LINE Ads Platform over the course of the ad's listing in order to ensure that its content continues to adhere to all relevant guidelines, and that any offending content is properly revised, deleted, or removed from the platform.

Content within this document are not official legal advice. Advertisers are required to study and make sure their products follow all applicable laws and industry rules.

LINE will not be responsible for the improper use of this guideline. Advertisers will not bring charge against LINE or any of LINE affiliates for any breach of applicable laws and industry rules from the use of this document. Term and Conditions for advertising masks and hand sanitizers.

1. For masks, the price tag needs to be clearly determined besides an eligible price. In addition, the benefits of the products can't be over-claimed.

2. For surgical masks that are made in Thailand, price per unit can't exceed 2.5 THB (VAT included) only. In any advertisement, the price needs to be clearly determined (if the products such as surgical masks or any kind of masks are imported from overseas, the price must not exceed the price determined by the ministry of commerce).

3. The product such as filter or any supporting filter that's used underneath the masks, the product details need to be clarified as "filter" to not confuse the buyer to perceive it as a surgical mask.

4. The product such as hand sanitizers will need a certification from FDA for the examination by LINE Team.

Guidelines on Advertising Copy Language

- Clear identification of main advertising entity

Advertisements must clearly state the entity responsible for the advertisement at all times, and in the case of an image, the identification must be large enough to be easily visible to the viewer. Furthermore, if the advertiser utilizes material that it does not own the rights to, it must clearly state the copyright owner as well as their relationship.

- Prohibition of content that confuses or misrepresents any content as provided by LINE

The use of logos, characters, services, or other content owned by LINE in such a manner that could confuse users or cause them to believe the advertisement is provided by LINE is strictly prohibited.

- In particular, the copyrights to the LINE characters are the sole property of LINE Corporation and its related companies. Any unauthorized use of them within your ad creative is strictly prohibited.
- The following guidelines must be respected when using the LINE logo, LINE icon, or LINE Official Account logo.

<http://line.me/en/logo/guideline>

https://media.line.me/en/how_to_install

- Use of the term "friend"

A "friend" refers to the status of a user who has friended a LINE account such as an LINE Official Account. For this reason, please unify the expression in linked pages and creatives as well, so that users who are connected to a LINE account such as an LINE Official Account is always called "friends." "Frenz" and other spellings are prohibited.

Guidelines on Advertising Copy Language

- Ads with multiple sponsors are forbidden

Ad spaces may not be resold without LINE's express permission. Further, in consideration of protecting users' interests, placing information regarding unrelated third parties in ads is generally forbidden.

- Link restrictions

Links to pages that have no direct relationship to the account or the ad creative are prohibited. The ad and its content must be considered natural when looked at from the viewpoint of an average user.

- Text in ad images

Excessive text in ad images may result in your ad reaching fewer people or not running at all. Try to use little or no image text when possible.

- Positioning: Relevance, Accuracy, Related landing pages

All advert components, including any text, image or other media, must be relevant and appropriate to the product or service being offered and the audience viewing the advert. Adverts must clearly represent the company, product, service or brand that is being advertised. The products and services promoted in an advert's text must match those promoted on the landing page, and the destination site must not offer or link to any prohibited product or service.

Guidelines on Advertising Copy Language

- Prohibition of links to webpages that cannot be controlled via a smartphone

Links to pages that cannot be viewed or operated via a standard smartphone (iOS, Android) browser are prohibited.

Please ensure that the link destination is compatible with smartphones.

Webpages with hard-to-read text or characters/images that do not fit on the screen are also prohibited.

- Prohibition of language or content with the potential to mislead or misdirect users

Advertisements containing content with the potential to offend users, such as images that overtly sexual or revealing of skin,*1 messages that are blatantly sexual in nature, or any other messages that may cause discomfort to users *2 are prohibited. *1. Swimsuit or underwear images unrelated to the advertisement are prohibited. *2. Statements encouraging use of violence or antisocial behavior are prohibited.

- Language that may feature unjustifiable or misleading representations

Language or content that deceive users into believing the product or service is better or cheaper than it actually is are prohibited.

Guidelines on Advertising Copy Language

- Language containing absolutes, such as "the best," "No. 1," or "best in class"

When using language in your ad creative that contains superlatives such as "World's First" or "World's No. 1," the claims must be properly substantiated, with the source behind the survey and the year it was conducted clearly labeled within your linked pages and ad creative.

- Language or content designed to obtain personal information through user registration or other similar methods

If your advertisement sends users to a separate web page and encourages them to register for your products or services, you must visually state in a plain and clear manner that the link destination is in no way affiliated with LINE or its partner companies. Additionally, when obtaining personal information from users, you must ensure that all handling of the information at the link destination follows the guidelines set out by the Act on the Protection of Personal Information. In order to protect the LINE user experience, please refrain from excessively soliciting users to register for your products or services.

- Content claiming the result of treatment or medication

Advertisements claiming the result of any kind of medical treatments are prohibited (except medication approved by law and regulations). Before/after images or VDOs are prohibited.

- Competitive Advertising

Advertisements comparing between owned products or services with other similar products or services are prohibited.
